THE RUSSIAN TYROL.

Riding at Break-Neck Speed Over the Rocks of the Caucasus.

I jump into a light carriage drawn by four horses. My driver, a Cossack, draped in his kozak, is armed with a magnificent bugle, the use of which I cannot divine. We rise rapidly up the gorge of Darfel, the Therapsyria of the Caucasus, the bloody road of the debauch of the conquest. Night falls suddenly, augmented by a storm which opens upon us the deluge of heaven. A wall of fog fills space, but our ride in the mountain becomes all the more fantastic on that account. At full speed we rush along the unsafe road, across swollen cascades which the horses jump bravely. Sheets of mist float over our heads: from time to time through a rent in them, we perceive the black bar of the overhanging walls of rock. At our feet the Terek roars. Sudden apparitions stretch out their arms in the fog; these are oak trees or poplars. A Cossack puts his bugle to his lips and blows a blast that the echoes repeat. I now understand the use of his instrument. It warns the carriages that are coming at full speed in the opposite direction through the sharp bends, and it makes those which we pass clear the way. At the sound of this trumpet of doom, terrified phantoms flee before us—Tobereks, horsemen of spectral mien, clad in bashlik or borz; heads of horses that we recognize to the plain; heavy Osset carts, with lone Muscovite families concealed beneath their canvas awnings. We still mount higher and higher; the darkness grows thicker and thicker in this sort of tunnel, as it were the walls of a well, and meetings become more rare. Below us the torrents roar deep; on the peaks the snow presents confused white masses, torrents and snow recombine a diffuse brightness, and we feel that there is a pale fragment of moon somewhere behind the clouds. At the post stations where we stop to change horses two sounds alone trouble the majestic silence—the rush of water, the whirring of the Russian wind, come from the steep, folding its cold wings, as a Lomont says. We cross precipices at a gallop over frail little bridges. The air becomes stinging, sharpened by the cold, the neighboring snow. The storm increases in violence, and obliges us to halt at the inn at the Kazbek Pass, and wait there until dawn.

Day breaks in a bright clear sky cleared by yesterday's rain. I see as it were a new world, and touch the first glaciers of the Kazbek, that giant of the Caucasus, which lifts its bald head more than 10,000 feet high.

We advance along the road cut across an amphitheater with walls of granite and basalt. I notice several of these half-ruined villages dominated by a square tower. Here was the refuge of a small Christian feudalism which, though the Middle Ages were over, still held its own against the Persian invaders and against the Persians who were masters of the southern valleys. The descendants of these Georgian clans still the poor mountain fields with a primitive plow. They dwell in built of stages without mortar or plaster, and so low that they can hardly be distinguished from the rocks with which their brown color confounds them. A miserable race which has been hunted down for centuries, now by the enemy from the south, and now by the enemy from the north, and which hides its dens with the instinctive ruse of the wild beast. We round the foot of the Belida, and every vestige of human life disappears; the first rays of an invisible sun fix a little pale gold on the summit of the walls of ice. Before reaching the Goudaur Pass, 7400 feet, the road plunges into a trench cut right through the snow; the eye sees nothing beneath the heavens but this white sheet stretched from one peak to the other.

While we are changing horses at the Goudaur station, I dip on my right and on my left in the partially congealed snow. The first will join the Terek and water our Europe; the second will go to form the Arax, which we see spread out before our eyes. Another step and we are in a new world. From this point the descent begins; at the commencement it is very steep; the road goes down in innumerable zigzags, and yet our little horses rush forward with the swiftness of a whirlwind. How we reach the bottom without breaking our bones a hundred times in the causers of Allah, the

THE CONGO BASIN.

And under the name of the Independent States of Congo its government was organized after the most approved methods of European administration, and it entered fully equipped into the family of nations. There is within its area, which, as said, is thirty-three times that of Belgium, a population of 450 whites, about one-half State officials and employees, and the estimated number of natives within its borders is about 40,000,000; and in the whole Congo basin is estimated at about 50,000,000. Africa is about three times the area of Europe, or 15,000,000 square miles, and some writers estimate it to contain about an equal population—325,000,000 souls. The enormous trade developing there comes mainly from the narrow seaway which separates the mountains from the sea. It is a great basin composed of plateaus gradually ascending to 7,000 feet at some of the central lakes. It has four great river systems. On the west the Congo, second only to the Amazon in the volume of its waters, and the Niger; on the north the Nile; and on the east the Zambesi. These rivers once formed vast internal seas, which finally breaking through the mountain barriers, have descended by catarracts and canyons to the ocean, leaving great areas of rich deposits of wonderful fertility.

—"The Congo basin," says an eminent scientific authority, Prof. Dupont, fresh from a visit there, "is destined to be the granary of the world." Is this the ground to draw the gathering electricity from that black cloud spreading over the Southern States, which thus far has dropped fatness upon and given vast production to them, but which is now growing big with destructive elements? Perhaps here may be found a solution of the race problem that presses on us and must be met and must be solved. What eminent statesman will give him self to this great work, compel public attention, and point the way thither for these disturbing elements? Though condemned at present by many from partisan or other standpoint, an exodus of the better educated and more ambitious people of the colored race would lead up to practical, peaceful, happy results for us and for our African race, and to immortal honors for that statesman. When is the new colored Moses to rise for this exodus and lead his people home?—Henry S. Sanford, in Forum.

—A Chinaman's Savings Bank. No sort of savings bank seems to exactly meet all requirements. Ten years ago Yao Ah Wo, a prosperous Chinese laundryman in New York, having a distrust of cashiers, tellers, presidents, burglar-proof safes, and other machinery of savings banks of the metropolis, invested $750 of his savings in that common ornament of a first-class Chinese gentleman, a jade bracelet, and then $1,600 more in diamond bracelets, all of which he put on his left wrist. He had them made to fit very snug, so that they could not be removed by a robber. He had no occasion to use his money until recently, when he was in great need of ready cash, but to his dismay, he found that he had grown so fat that he could not get his jade bracelet from his wrist without sawing it—the bracelet—in two, which would destroy its—the bracelet's—value. As the diamond bracelets are above the jade he had his wealth pretty securely locked up. The only practical way of getting it is by reducing his style of living until his diminished size permits the removal of the bracelets the way they went on.—National Tribune.

—A Very Good Reason. Druggists who are selling Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., wonder that its sales increase so rapidly. At first they began to buy a quarter or a half dozen, but found that amount was sold sometimes in a single day, and now they say they are obliged to buy in half gross and gross lots in order to keep a supply on hand. There is a very good reason why Smith's Tonic Syrup should sell so well. There is not much newspaper advertising done, but it advertises itself. Every bottle used is an advertisement, for it does exactly what it is expected to do. It will break up the chills and fever in less time than any other drug. It will prevent and cure colds, influenza, grippe, etc. In fact, it can be substituted for quinine in every instance, and with better satisfaction, for its effect is more certain and reliable, and it never leaves the unpleasant effects that quinine sometimes does. Marion C. Signal.

CRAWFORD'S BIG SCOOP.

The Post-Scout's Clever Diplomacy After the Oster Massacre.

Captain Jack Crawford, the post-scout, is a noticeable figure in the kaleidoscope of the capital this spring. It is difficult to realize that this handsome, brown-haired, gentle-mannered young man has faced death in every form for twenty-five years; that those mild blue eyes have not seldom looked calmly into the muzzle of loaded "guns" in the hands of furious enemies, white and Indian, and that blizzards and short rains have been familiar companions since boyhood.

Jack's special hobby is, strange to say, of a frontiersman, temperance. He never in his life tasted a drop of liquor, and, as he is a ready and eloquent speaker, he is naturally in great demand at the meetings around town.

It requires some diplomacy to get Captain Jack to talk of the exciting events in which he has figured, but when he does his vivid and picturesque narrative is a treat.

When Crook's expedition was marching to Custer's relief in 1876, there were a number of correspondents of Eastern journals with the column. One night, when encamped near Deadwood, the news of the massacre reached them. Of course the first thought of each was to get his dispatches to the editors of his brethren. The nearest telegraphic station of which they knew was at Fort Laramie, some four hundred miles away, through a wild country swarming with hostile Indians.

The New York Herald representative sought out Captain Crawford, then chief of scouts for Crook, and offered him $500 if he would land his matter in New York ahead of his rivals. Jack took his package, and at midnight started on a very little broncho alone. He reached Custer, eighty miles away, the next evening, and led his worn-out horse into the hotel stable, where it incontinently lay down and died. This was a pretty serious matter, but his own stomach had to be attended to, and so he entered the dining-room of the log hotel and ordered his supper. While eating he was rather disagreeably surprised by the entrance of his friend, "Antelope Frank," another noted scout, who was on a similar errand to his own for another party.

"Frank," said Jack abruptly, "we are both dead here, so let us agree to stay here over night and make a fair start tomorrow." "I'll go you," said Frank.

And they retired to a room together. About midnight Jack awoke and instantly looked for Frank. He found him quietly sleeping. Still disturbed and anxious, he went down to the bar room, and by a few leading questions to the functionary in attendance he found that "Antelope Frank," while keeping to the word of his agreement, had sent his messenger hours before.

Jack instantly rushed to the stable, found there a famous racing mare belonging to a friend of Davis, who kept the hotel, and in two minutes was out on the Laramie trail and away. But a stern chase is a long chase, and he never headed Frank's messenger.

SPORT IN MISSOURI.

"Northern sportsmen certainly can't know any thing of Southern Missouri as a game country, or most of them would visit that garden spot of the Southwest," said George P. Stanley, of automatic motor fame. "I spent four weeks in that region last fall, and I give you my word that I never saw, heard or read of such a quantity and variety of wild game as makes its home in that country, and the contiguous one of Northern Arkansas. The Southern Missouri country is more especially favored by small game—wild turkeys, grouse, quail and rabbits, although there are a great many deer there—so many, in fact, that one day I saw a native hunter into one of the towns a wagon load of deer, just as the countrymen here in the North had in loads of wool. The deer were stacked on the wagon till the load was all the team of mules that pulled the wagon wanted to draw. I was told that such a sight was common in that country, and that I never saw one purchased for almost nothing by local dealers and shipped to St. Louis and other markets. Just out of curiosity I asked the owner of this load of venison what he would take for the immense freight from the north. The full moon was shining so brightly that one could almost feel its rays. The breeze had fallen away completely, allowing the sails to flap lazily against the spars in accompaniment to the monotonous squeaking of the ropes as the well-oiled tackle in the trough of the long round swell. As far as eye could reach around the horizon not a ripple was visible on the surface of the sea. The very elements appeared to be hushed. The whole stretch, with the exception of the man at the wheel and I, were gathered around the combings of the fore hatch gambling away their tobacco, spinning yarns and smoking. I was seated up on the captain's 'look out,' but the solemnity of the very atmosphere itself kept me in a drowsy state between waking and sleeping. This, together with the musical chirping of 'Mother Carey's chickens' in the fore rigging, proved too much for my feeble efforts at wakefulness, and several times I came within an ace of falling overboard. This continued until near the end of my watch, when as I peacefully dozed off I heard a sudden 'look out,' and before I was aware of what had happened I received a terrific blow between the eyes, the force of which knocked me off the captain over the windlass down to the deck among the players. I leaped up, seized a belaying pin and with a string of sulphuric explosives demanded to know who hit me. My answer was a burst of laughter, and one of the men pointed to the topgallant forecastle at a large flying fish flapping on the deck. It had struck me while passing over the ship, and raised a lump the size of a hen's egg between my eyes. We fried the fish the next morning and breakfasted off of it."—N. Y. Herald.

Frank's messenger, meanwhile, was plodding along faithfully to Laramie, as he had been instructed. When he arrived there he found the wire occupied, and the matter he had carried had been sent to the Herald's special and a long string of inconsequential stuff, improvised by Jack to hold the wire, had been sent. The "scoop" was complete, and Bennett sent him not only the $500 promised, but also additional for his bold and intelligent exploit.—Washington Post.

COMPLETELY KNOCKED OUT.

Unpleasant Experience of an Amateur Sailor With a Flying Fish.

Persons who have not experienced some scaring among the West India Islands and become to some extent familiar with the tricks and antics of the flying fish which abound in these waters will be surprised at the velocity they attain in their short flight. The fish will never leave the water unless compelled to do so by their natural enemies, the dolphins, and when they do fly they shoot through the air like a rocket.

Some years ago, while on a voyage to Rio Janeiro, I had an experience off the Cuban coast with a flying fish that I am not likely to forget and which made me the subject of considerable merriment among my older companions. The majority of them were old sailors who had visited these waters many times before and were well acquainted with the tricks of the winged fish.

They prefer flying at night, and it was during the midnight watch that I met with my adventure. The night was one of those balmy evenings peculiar to sub-tropical waters, seldom if ever experienced in the north. The full moon was shining so brightly that one could almost feel its rays. The breeze had fallen away completely, allowing the sails to flap lazily against the spars in accompaniment to the monotonous squeaking of the ropes as the well-oiled tackle in the trough of the long round swell. As far as eye could reach around the horizon not a ripple was visible on the surface of the sea. The very elements appeared to be hushed. PUBLISHED TUESDAY AND FRIDAY MORNINGS.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM.

SUBSCRIPTION $2 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Local reading notices 50 cents per line. Special notices 25 cents per line each insertion. Rates for advertising in this paper furnished on application.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 15, 1890.

Barren county refused to tax its dogs by a vote of 2,688 to 516.

The Delaware Democrats have nominated Robt. J. Reynolds for Governor, and will elect him.

Mississippi's Constitutional Convention has organized by electing Judge S. S. Calhoun President.

Col. W. C. Veasey, of Vermont, has been elected Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, now in session at Boston.

John Boyle O'Reilly, the Irish poet, patriot and editor of the Boston Pilot, died suddenly in Massachusetts last Sunday, aged 46 years.

The Democratic Congressional Convention of the Third district has been called to meet at Bowling Green Sept. 4, county conventions to be held Aug. 30.

Gen. Hogg is the Democratic nominee for Governor of Texas. He ought to fare well in a State whose leading products are corn and Democratic majorities.

Out of 100 Delegates to the Con. Con., 16 are Republicans, 5 Alliance men, 1 an Independent and 78 Democrats. There are 54 lawyers, 14 farmers, 9 doctors and the rest are of various occupations.

The increase in the population of New York state is about 1,000,000, more than enough to offset three or four of the new Republican States let into the Union. It is still, "As New York goes, so goes the Union."

First Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson has tendered his resignation to take effect Sept. 1. He will go to Denver, Col., to take charge of the Rocky Mountain News, which he will convert into a Republican organ.

The Democratic convention or primary election to nominate a candidate for Congress in this district should not be held earlier than the last week in September. The people need a rest for awhile from election excitement.

Gov. Knott with a party of friends has gone to Duluth, Minn., to celebrate the anniversary of his great Duluth speech, which made forever famous the "Zenith City of the Unsettled Seas." He will be the guest of the city for several days and the festivities will wind up with a grand banquet.

Judge Dan H. Hughes, of Morganfield, Ky., died August 11, of Bright's disease. He was a lawyer of high standing and a citizen of prominence and usefulness in Union county. He leaves one son and three daughters, two of whom have frequently visited in this city and are well known here. One of his daughters is the wife of Mr. W. S. Feland, of Owensboro.

In the last State campaign in Tennessee Bob Taylor and his brother Alf Taylor were the nominees of the Democratic and Republican parties respectively for Governor. This year Lewis T. Baxter is the Republican candidate for Governor of Tennessee, while his brother Geo. W. Baxter has just been nominated by the Democrats of Wyoming for Governor of that State.

Ex-Gov. Knott, Capt. C. T. Allen, Col. R. P. Jacob and Col. H. D. McHenry are all out as candidates for President of the Constitutional Convention, which meets Sept. 9. Jas. E. Stone, Thos. G. Poore and Jas. B. Martin all want to be clerk. H. Clay Elliott, R. T. Haley, Smith Cook and "Uncle Joe" Read, are candidates for Doorkeeper, and Judge B. R. Walker, Bob Taylor and Bart Jenkins are contesting for the position of Sergeant-at-arms.

During the epidemic of flux in this county last summer, I had hard work to keep a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. People often came ten or twelve miles in the night to get a bottle of the Remedy. I have been selling it ever since for the last ten years and find that it has given better satisfaction in cases of diarrhoea and flux, than any other medicine I have ever handled.

J. H. Bessan, Druggist, Colemans, Pope Co., Ill. Over five hundred bottles of this Remedy were sold in that county during the epidemic. It was a perfect success and was the only remedy that did cure the worst cases. Dozens of persons there will certify that it saved their lives. In four other epidemics of bowel complaint this Remedy has been equally successful. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

SOISSORED.

THE YOUNGEST DELEGATE.

[Owensboro Messenger.]

The youngest delegate in the Constitutional Convention will be Harvey H. Smith, from Hardin county, who is only twenty-three years old. He was elected after a remarkably brilliant canvass over four competitors, among whom was Mr. Helm, a distinguished citizen of Elizabethtown. The News says he has only been in the county since fall, having been at school for several years, and of course had a very limited acquaintance. That he should have beaten three older men under these circumstances indicates there is something in the young man. Thirty years ago there was discovered in Hardin county a young man who made just such a marvelous race. As a headless youth he defeated one of the most popular politicians in the county by his matchless oratory and commanding intellect. May it not be that in young Smith another John Young Brown has been found?

[Louisville Commercial.]

Some twelve or fifteen men, may be as many as thirty, of first-class ability have been elected to the Constitutional Convention. Along with them have been chosen a number of cranks and a crowd of mediocre characters. The good and able men will have a heavy task imposed on them, and they should be able to count on the backing of the solid people of the State.

THE EXCUSE.

[Covington Commonwealth.]

The excuse which the Hopkinsville American gives for the Democratic victory in Christian county is decidedly unique. "The negro JUDAS betrayed Christian county to the Democratic JUDAS."

The reason for the change from Republicanism to Democratic supremacy was the stringent registration law, which killed off floaters and repeaters.

THE BOUQUET BLUSHES.

[Frankfort Capital.]

Gentlemen of the Hopkinsville Kentuckian and New Era, you are Democratic and journalistic daisies, every one of you, and the honest people of Christian county owe you a substantial debt of gratitude they can never fully pay.

Mr. John Carpenter, of Goodland, Ind., says: "I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for diarrhoea and cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels with the best results. In the worst cases I never had to give more than the third dose to effect a cure. In most cases one dose will do. Besides it's other good qualities it is pleasant to take." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

COWAN'S CONTEST.

Mr. Wm. Cowan now has his papers about ready to serve notice of contest on Mr. Prowse for the County Clerkship and the notice will be given to-day.

Facts enough have already been brought to light to make his contest a sure thing. In No. 4 district alone half a dozen Democrats who voted for Cowan have been found recorded by mistake for Prowse. These voters are as mad as wet hens and are anxious to be set right on the records. The Court of Appeals held in the Winfree-Anderson contest that the mistake of a clerk should be corrected and under this decision the contesting board will have a right to correct these errors, which of itself would put Cowan ahead.

In going over the books the names of a large number of unregistered voters were found recorded for Prowse. These will, of course, have to be rejected by the contesting board, though it is understood they will be used by Prowse's attorneys to carry the case to the higher courts to test the constitutionality of the registration law.

In addition to these two classes, nearly one hundred voters have been found who voted out of their districts, or who had forfeited their right to vote by moving and returned and voted illegally where they were registered.

The illegally registered voters who swore to lies on July 28, of whom there are twenty or more, will also be challenged and made one of the grounds for contest.

Altogether Mr. Cowan's attorneys, Messrs. McCarroll and Wood & Bell, expect to find at least a hundred illegal votes recorded for Prowse, to say nothing of the mistakes by which his majority of 5 votes was obtained.

The case will come before the contesting board the fourth Monday after notice is served, which will be Sept. 8. The board will be Judge Morrow and Esqs. Davison and Morris.

As a general liniment for sprains and bruises or for rheumatism, lumbago, deep seated or muscular pains, Chamberlain's Pain Balm is unrivaled. For sale by Buckner Leavell.

Mathew Hume Clay, a young man 27 years of age, has gone wrong at Winchester, Ky., and has left the State after forging the name of his grandfather, Mathew Hume, to notes aggregating $97,700. He has been a boom town speculator and has lost heavily in his undertakings. His grandfather is 90 years old and worth $500,000. Clay started towards Canada, but he has probably gone to Mexico, as that is the only country from which he could not be extradited for forgery. He has a young wife and a baby daughter.

ROARING SPRING.

ROARING SPRING, Aug. 12.—The recent rains have been very improving to the tobacco and corn, therefore the farmers are rejoicing.

Mr. J. R. McNichols, of Clarksville, has returned after a pleasant visit to relatives.

Misses Cora Pankoy, of Church Hill, and Lucy Garrett, of Longview, were the pleasant guests of Miss Mary Campbell last week and we regret their departure so soon.

Miss Lillie Crenshaw spent several days in Linton this week.

Mr. Ed Leford and wife, of Paducah, are visiting the family of Mr. Steve Leford.

We are glad to say that Mrs. White Lewis is improving very fast after a severe attack of illness.

Miss Mary Campbell has been thinking seriously of joining the "Mason" lodge.

Several of this vicinity attended the Association at Gracely, viz: Mr. and Mrs. Steve Leford, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hamrick, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Giles, Mrs. Ida Rasey, Joe R. McNichols, Misses Mary Campbell, Cora Pankoy, Hattie Miller, Ella Leford, Gable Lewis, Emma Crenshaw and Lucille Clay.

Floyd Giles and Troy Miller have been traveling for the past week buying sheep for Esquire Frank C. Campbell, Jr. He accompanied them as far as Hopkins, where he was pleased to find "one."

We are glad to inform the public that Mr. Henry F. Hamrick, who got his leg broken several weeks ago, is able to sit up some at present.

Mrs. Henry Southall is spending a few weeks in your city.

The party at Mrs. Goliday's was a perfect success.

Mr. Bruce Campbell, while returning home after a visit to the "Coward," was thrown from his horse but not seriously hurt.

Miss Cora Pankoy, unlike the most of us, prefers "Nichols" to dollars.

We hope that our Sunday School may continue to progress as rapidly as it has lately.

Mr. Editor, I wish you were here to eat watermelons with us, as they are quite plentiful at our house.

I will close by wishing the Kentuckian success.

Prize Exercises.

Resolved, That in view of the near approach of the centenary of the State, this Association take the following steps looking to the celebration of that event in all the schools of Kentucky.

1st. An exercise suitable for presentation by children shall be prepared. The exercise shall include prose, poetry and song, the character of which shall be historical, biographical and patriotic. It shall be of such length as to require for proper presentation not less than one and one-half hours nor more than two hours. It must be so arranged as to permit of including in its presentation children from primary to high school grades.

2d. The preparation of this exercise shall be open to any and all persons who may wish to compete. A prize of $50.00 shall be offered for the best exercise, and $25.00 for the second best, all manuscripts offered being the property of this Association.

3d. The examination of manuscripts and award of prizes shall be by a committee of three appointed for that purpose by this Association. All competing manuscripts must be in the hands of the committee by April 1st, 1891, and the award of prizes shall be announced and made at the meeting of this Association in that year.

All manuscripts and communications concerning same shall be sent to the chairman of this committee as hereafter named by the President of this Association.

The motion was adopted and Supr. C. H. Dietrich, R. H. Carothers, and Mrs. Mattie B. Tucker were appointed a committee as contemplated in the resolutions.

THE SICK.

Miss Lena Grissam is still quite sick.

Mrs. Newton Payne is very ill.

Miss Emily B. Perry is quite sick.

Mrs. Eunice Robertson, who has been very ill, is improving.

CREAM OF NEWS.

The Taxpayers' Committee.
Esq. Davidson and Mr. Geo. C. Long, the committee to investigate the raises of private tax lists, are still hammering away on 1886 and finding from ten to twenty raises to the page. These range all the way from ten cents to $12. The city book has not yet been reached and will not be this week. The books of 1886 will probably be finished next week, but at the present rate of progress the investigation will not be completed when the grand jury meets September 1.

Shot at a Burglar.
Yesterday morning about 4 o'clock a colored burglar cut a slat in the window of the family bed room at Mr. W. E. Ragsdale's and entered the room. His presence was discovered by Mrs. Ragsdale, who was in the room alone with some small children at the time, and she jumped from the bed and ran to the bureau to get a pistol. The thief leaped from the window before she secured the weapon, which she fired at him twice as he ran across the yard. The man was distinctly seen, as a light was in the room and day was breaking outside. He took with him some clothing, which he dropped when the shots were fired.

The County's Investigation.
Esqs. Barker, Tinsley, and Myers have been engaged this week in making the investigation for the county of the sheriff's books of 1881 to 1888. The books of 1881 have been finished and some mistakes found both ways in the State's examination, though the net shortage is increased about $50 for that year. Alterations on the assessor's book for one district have been found and the committee, unless the fresh ink changes can be explained, will order the Auditor's original copies from Frankfort for comparison. The committee expect to be in session three or four days each week until its work is completed.

The Congressional Race.
Mr. Urey Woodson, Chairman of the District Committee, has issued a formal call for the meeting of the members of the Democratic Executive Committee at the Barrett House, in Henderson, on to-morrow, Aug. 16, for the purpose of determining the time and method of making a nomination for Congress. The district committee is composed of the chairmen of the several county committees and is as follows: Urey Woodson, chairman; J. L. Dulin, Christian; R. W. Slack, Davies; J. Powers, Hancock; A. T. Dudley, Henderson; A. K. Bradley, Hopkins; Geo. S. Priest, McLean; H. D. Allen, Union; Boone Beckham, Webster.

County Committees.
The Democratic State Committee has ordered a re-organization of all County Committees on Sept. 6. Each precinct is to elect its own Committee in accordance with the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Resolved, that the election of precinct committees be by mass convention at 2 p. m., except in the cities of Newport and Covington, where the mass shall be at 8 p. m. The mass conventions shall be held at the present voting places in said precincts. There shall be notices of said meetings published in a newspaper having general circulation in or near said precincts at least three days before said conventions, or by posters at public places near said voting places. The election of precinct committees in the city of Louisville shall be governed by such regulations as the State Central Committee may hereafter prescribe. The various municipal executive committees shall be elected at such times and in such manner from time to time as the Central Committee shall prescribe."

Horrible Holocaust of Horses.
On last Tuesday morning the large training stable of W. F. Buckner and R. J. Ellis was burned, near New Providence, Tenn., about two miles from Clarksville, and eight valuable horses destroyed. The employees were sleeping in the office of the stable, and were awakened by the noise of the horses, but in time to rescue but one horse, the heat being so intense.

The fire originated from the outside; flames soon reached the loft of provender and burned very rapidly. The cause of the fire is unknown and a mystery.

Buckner's horses were Alderay, who cost him $3,000 only a few months since, and was doubtless one of the most promising horses in the State, with a record of 2:30. He had only a few weeks since refused $5,000 for a half interest in him. Frank B. was a pacer, valued at $3,000. The other horses were of less value.

Ellis' horses were his famous pacer, Grey Dick, valued at $3,000, and the other three of less value.

The total loss of the building, stock, etc., will exceed $20,000; insured for $7,250 in the Hamburg-Bremen, National, of Hartford, Lancashire and other companies. The stable adjoining was full of horses, and took fire, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

DEATHS.

COLORED.
A grand-child of Aaron Adams, in the city, Tuesday, aged 2 years.

HERE AND THERE.

$700 to loan on first mortgage, real estate for security.

Born to the wife of Mr. E. B. Bassett, on the 10th, a son.

The Medical Club will meet at Dr. Stites' office at 7:30 this evening.

R. M. Woodridge, livery, feed & sale stable, Fritz' stand. Telephone 144.

A few thoroughbred South Down Bucks for sale at ten dollars.

Cards are out announcing the betrothal of Mr. Julius Weil, of this city, to Miss Sara Metzger, of Milwaukee.

Rev. H. F. Perry's regular appointment for the 3d Sunday, at Bennetts-town has been changed this month to the 5th Sunday.

The Council was booked to meet last night to consider the matter of electric lights, which has been the cause of a good deal of wrangling for some months.

Dr. J. L. Dulin will not attend the Democratic Committee meeting at Henderson to-morrow. He has sent his proxy to Mr. A. T. Dudley.

"The Caldwell Musical Association" has been organized with Mr. J. E. McPherson as president. It will meet weekly, the object being mutual improvement in music.

The State Grand Lodge of the U. B. F. is in session at Owensboro this week. R. A. Phelps, A. C. Banks and E. W. Glass are among the delegates in attendance from the Lodge here.

Dr. Andrew Sargent's very able paper read before the May meeting of the State Medical Society is published in the current number of "The American Practitioner and News," of Louisville.

Montgomery county, Tenn., elected the following officers last week: C. W. Staton, Sheriff; F. D. Daniel, Circuit Clerk; J. M. Rogers, Register; Geo. Warfield, Trustee; C. D. Bailey, County Clerk.

John Wandling, cashier of the Owensboro Deposit Bank, has been suspended for some unknown reason and the local papers are full of speculations as to the cause. His accounts are known to be all right and the most probable cause is a disagreement with the president, Mr. Jas. Weir.

Our young friend and former fellow citizen, Thos. W. Buckner, was elected a councillorman from the Second Ward at the recent municipal election in the city of Henderson. Four councillorsmen were elected, the other three being J. W. Moore from the First, W. E. Labrey from the Third and Ed Manion from the Fourth.

The office of deputy revenue collector at this place, held by Mr. J. P. Prowse, has been abolished, much to the surprise of Messrs. J. M. Starling, R. P. Owsley and other Republicans who expected to step into Mr. Prowse's shoes. The funny part of it all is that the office was abolished July 1, but the announcement was withheld until after the election.

Miss Eunice Fuqua will teach an art class at Bethel Female College this fall, beginning Aug. 25. She is thoroughly competent to give instruction in oil painting, drawing and pencil crayon work. She has executed some very fine pictures and has taken a number of premiums on her work. She should receive a generous patronage.

The Davies county Baptist Association met at Greenville, Ky., Tuesday. Dr. J. S. Coleman was elected Moderator and A. G. Davis, secretary. Dr. Coleman has been elected moderator for 21 consecutive years. He exhibited a gravel made from the stump of the tree under which the first sermon ever heard in Kentucky was preached, at a time when there were only about 100 white people in the territory.

Mr. Edgar B. McEuen writes us from Sacramento, Ky., that he has not left Hopkinsville permanently, but will shortly return home. The Kentuckian cheerfully makes this correction and is glad to know that its information concerning Mr. McEuen's departure was incorrect. Mr. McEuen also takes occasion to say that he is not a candidate for State Senator, as has been generally understood for some months.

Mr. C. M. Latham left yesterday for New York, where he will be for several weeks buying goods for the fall trade. He will, provided a suitable one can be found, bring with him a first-class dressmaker and open an elegant dress making department in connection with his store this fall. It goes without the saying that his stock of goods will be selected with the greatest care and with the closest attention to the wants of his customers.

LEXINGTON, Aug. 2, 1890.—Dear Mr. Tattler: I thank you very much for the nice things you said about me in the Times. I hope I will soon be riding the Times bicycle, but that bicycle seems to want to ride me now. After a few more tussles with it I think I will be on top. It's a daisy.

Your little friend,
CLARK TANDY.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Celebration of The 50th Anniversary of The Union of J. B. and Eliza White.

After concluding to celebrate their advent upon the 2nd half century of their union by some ceremony, by Mr. and Mrs. White invitations were extended to the neighborhood and especially to the members of the Olivet Baptist church; also many friends outside of this neighborhood were bidden to the wedding. On account of the great length of time (over fifty years) that the above parties had lived in this section, their manner of living, their generosity, their benevolence, their christian career which had gained them great popularity, as a matter to be expected many friends far and near were present.

The time set apart, 8 o'clock p. m., Wednesday July 25, 1890, arrived. The premises, which were beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, were thronged with the children, the grand children, neighbors and friends of the parties who were soon to be reunited in the sacred bonds of wedlock.

After the warm meeting and greeting of friends and neighbors were partially over and all things ready, the bride and groom were led to the altar and met by Rev. J. G. Kendall, who briefly performed the marital ceremony, alluding to their success in life, their congeniality of spirit, their oneness of mind and purpose all through a life of 50 years.

He commended their christian conduct and purity. At the conclusion a ratifying kiss was proposed by the master of ceremonies and accepted by the bride (while the groom stood aside); congratulations and feasting were now in order, in which all seemed to indulge to the heart's full extent.

Among the far off visitors on this occasion was Judge James Quarles, of Nashville, Tenn., who was a groomsmen at the first marriage of the parties and seemed to enjoy and take in all the interest of the occasion. The wedding presents were many and of great variety, from a gold headed cane and delicate golden trimmed set of table ware to the 100 cent golden piece, all of intrinsic value. Withal the occasion will long be remembered by those present and especially their children who can with a feeling of pride refer to and talk of such an honorable parentage, a life of fifty long years with such a unity of feeling, unity of impulses and high toned aspirations.

J. D. G.

A GOOD THING!
To our friends and customers: We are pleased to inform you that we have a sure cure for chills, which is perfectly sweet. It has no taste at all. It will cure any case of Chills. Quit taking the bitter Chill Tonic, and let us sell you a bottle of Pomroy's Sweet Chill Cure! Price 50 cents. One bottle holds enough to cure two or three cases of Chills. Come and let us show it to you.

Your Friend,
BENJAMIN LEWELL,
Hopkinsville, Ky.

Teachers' Institute.
The county teachers have been in session all this week and will conclude their meeting to-day. The Institute is being held at South Kentucky College and since the first day the attendance has been very large, nearly all of the teachers in the county being present. Prof. Seabey is conducting the exercises and Prof. C. B. Pittman is chairman and Miss Lelia Cox, secretary. Many subjects of interest to teachers have been up for discussion and the meeting has so far been a very successful one.
